

Countries with higher percentage of working children tend to have lower percentage of children attending school

Relationship between percent of children working vs attending school in a country in 2016

Most countries have made little to no advancement in efforts to reduce child labor in the past 3 years

Yearly distribution of assessment of countries' efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor

Gold, sugarcane, bricks, and cotton are the goods most frequently produced by child or forced labor

Top ten products produced by child or forced labor in 2015

